Dear Gemma Bright

Thank you for your letter of 18 April 2011 outlining Workchoice Trust's promotion of Workchoice Day in May 2011.

In my previous letters to Workchoice Trust I have expressed support for Workchoice Day and the efforts the Trust makes providing work place experiences for senior students. I like your use of posters and the new Facebook page as promotional tools for this year's Workchoice Day. Your work which supports young people making choices about their futures is very important for them, their families and whānau and the country as a whole.

Again, best wishes for Workchoice Day on 17 May 2011 and thank you for your continued work in the important area of careers education.

Yours sincerely
